“ Randy and I were very close friends when we were in our twenties. As we often settle in other places, we become separated from our friends. I have great memories of the years of our exploits together. We were like brothers back then. Because of our wild ways, it is a wonder that either of us made it this far in life. My prayers are with the family. My remembrance of Randy will always be one of fondness for our friendship. I shall never forget him.
